Cold Blooded Beast begins as a supernal, comedic LGBTQ+ romance that puts a gay male couple spin on the "inhuman roommate" trope in high-concept comedies like Bewitched & I Dream of Jeannie.

At first it's all hijinks as timid Chaewool tries to coax his new roommate, the shocking resurrected Chaehun, the tough-guy boss that Chaewool has been crushing on, to get back into his old life and his old rhythms...

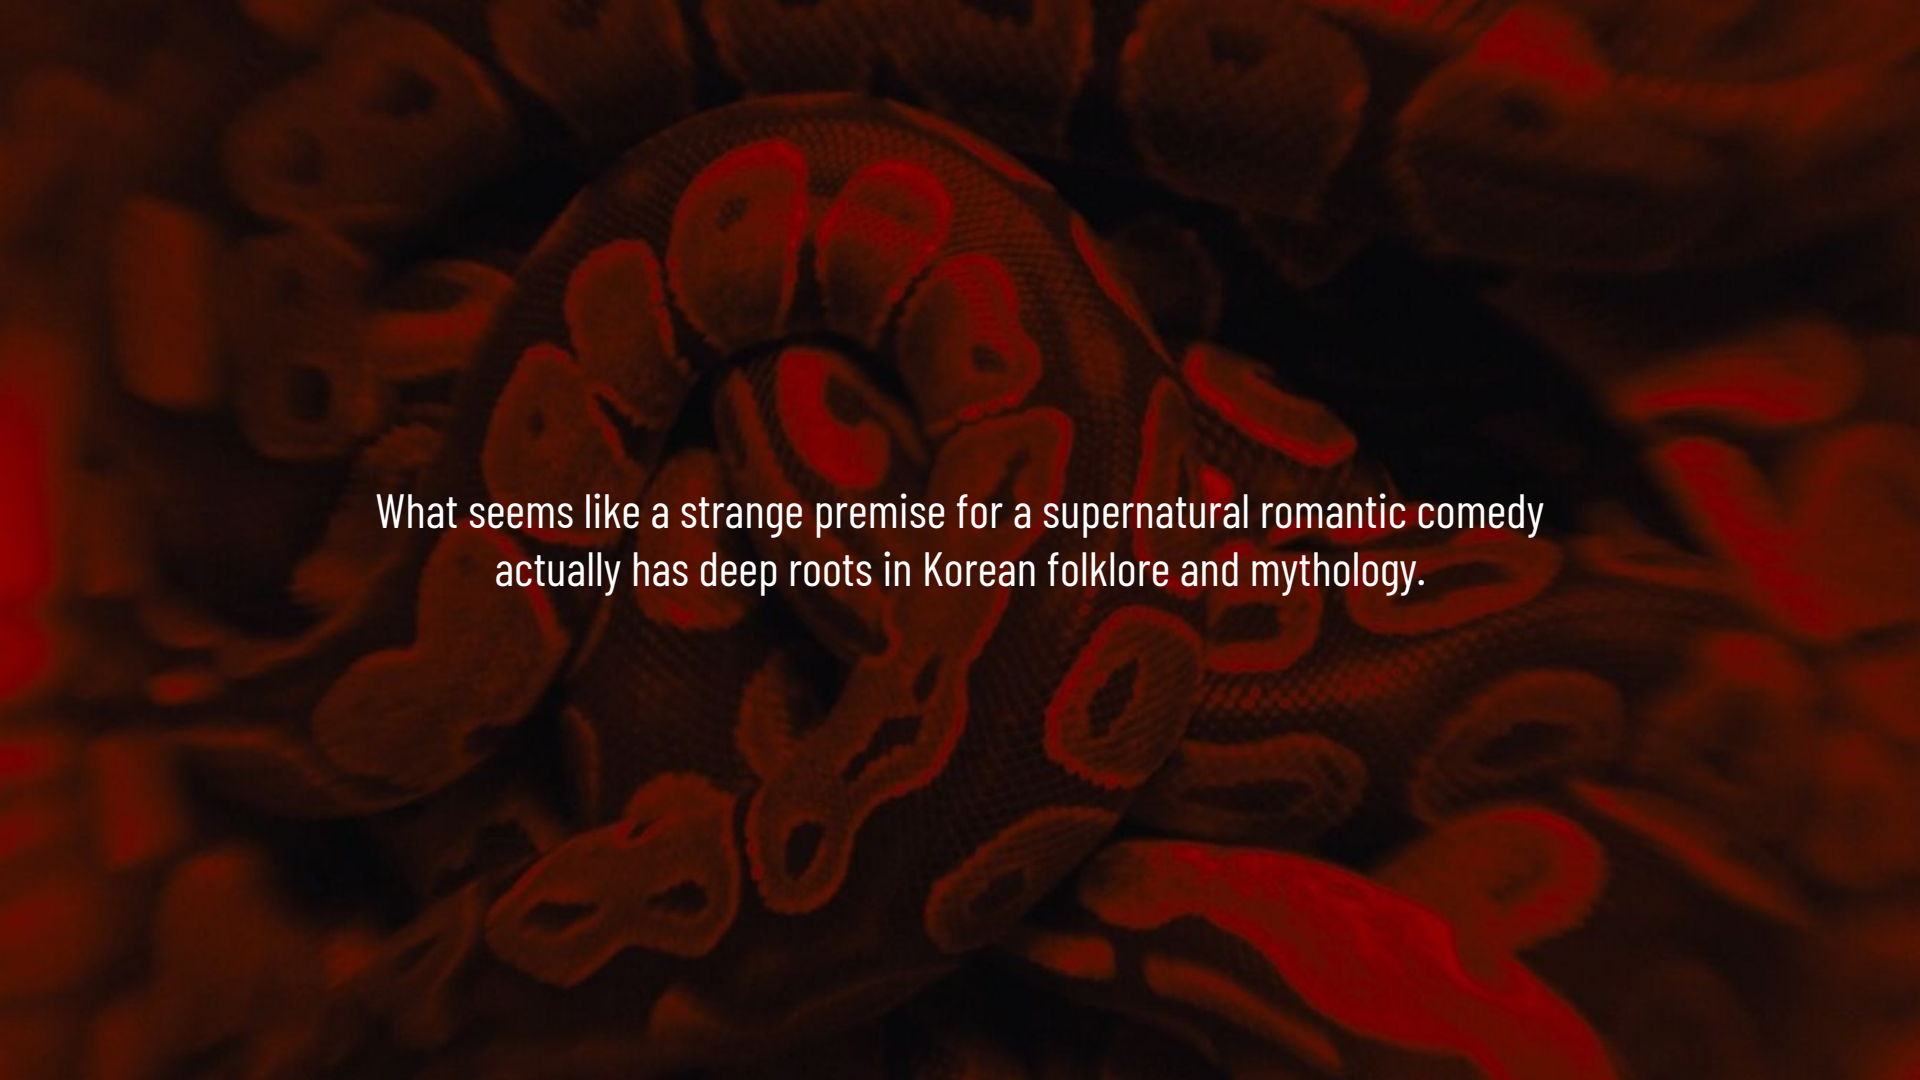

...rhythms such as being cut-throat in business and ignoring Chaewool.

Only now, Chaehun has a pesky issue with turning into...

...a giant snake!

The more Chaewool helps Chae-hun remember what it is to be human, the more the two begin to spark, turning a supernatural mystery into a true romance!

What seems like a strange premise for a supernatural romantic comedy actually has deep roots in Korean folklore and mythology.

Korean dragons are called “Yong (용)”.

Dragon may carry a giant orb known as a “Yeouiju (여의주)”.

Korean dragons symbolize only positive elements, such as achievement, luck and royalty...

...so only enlightened beings can transform into dragons.

A large, dark, scaly serpent (Imoogi) with a human figure in the foreground. The serpent is coiled, with its head facing forward, showing its eyes and nostrils. The human figure is seen from the back, wearing a dark jacket, looking towards the serpent. The background is dark and textured.

“Imoogi (이무기)“, but it means a large serpent with special powers that have either failed to become or hasn’t yet become a dragon.

In Korean mythology, a snake (Imoogi) goes through a 1,000-year spiritual training session.

It then obtains a Yeouiju to become a dragon and rise to the sky.

But if a dragon loses its Yeouiju, it will lose its power, fall to the ground and become an Imoogi again.

This Korean mythology is infused into the love story of our show...

As Chaewool and Chaehun fall deeper in love, and Chaehun's true nature becomes understood, the couple realizes that Chaewool is the reincarnation of Imoogi-Chaehun's Yeouiju.

faces an outlandish, unthinkable choice:

The couple faces an outlandish, unthinkable choice:

As Chaewool must allow Chaehun to turn into his Imoogi form and EAT HIM!

In a spiritual realm, Chaewool
becomes a Yeouiju,
while Chaehun
transforms into a Yong, wraps himself around the Yeouiji and TRANSCENDS TO THE HEAVENS.

When the smoke clears, and the dragon has ascended, the two lovers remain...
...gloriously human, ready to resume their lives... together.
